The past decade has seen the emergence of new communities of social scientists, including but not limited to anthropologists, who extend classic ethnographic methods and questions into areas of pressing interest in technology and economics. Of particular concern are phenomena like old and new infrastructures and communications technologies, virtual sociality, reconfigured forms of finance and money, and the pervasiveness of online interaction in offline life. This ethnographically and historically informed research is built on strong interdisciplinary connections, often to fields as remote from anthropology as design and engineering. Yet such work is sometimes still assumed to lie at the margins of what anthropology represents in terms of fieldsites and research goals.

In response, this new series of monographs by single or multiple authors will present innovative, interdisciplinary work that examines the varied ways new technologies combine with older technologies and cultural understandings to shape novel forms of subjectivity, embodiment, knowledge, place, and community. Through inquiries into topics ranging from finance and online sociality to social and technological infrastructure, the series will provide a forum for work that incorporates attention to intersections of technology and value.

The goal of the series is to showcase the best work in this exciting new field of anthropological inquiry. By doing so, the series will demonstrate the relevance of anthropology to some of the most consequential and cutting-edge social, economic, and technological phenomena of our day—to emerging forms of digital culture in the broadest sense.

Ethnography and Virtual Worlds
A Handbook of Method

Tom Boellstorff, Bonnie Nardi, Celia Pearce & T. L. Taylor

“What does ‘being there to know there’ mean in the virtual world? ‘Not much,’ I used to think! Maybe ‘virtual ethnography’ was an oxymoron? This book changed my mind. Most surprising is how the authors’ distillation of ethnography for virtual worlds reveals its essential and classical features. This book renews the craft of ethnography for all of the social sciences in virtual and physical worlds alike, making us think differently about both.”

Ethnography and Virtual Worlds is the only book of its kind—a concise, comprehensive, and practical guide for students, teachers, designers, and scholars interested in using ethnographic methods to study online virtual worlds, including both game and nongame environments. Written by leading ethnographers of virtual worlds, and focusing on the key method of participant observation, the book provides invaluable advice, tips, guidelines, and principles to aid researchers through every stage of a project, from choosing an online fieldsite to writing and publishing the results.

Tom Boellstorff is professor of anthropology at the University of California, Irvine. Bonnie Nardi is professor of informatics at the University of California, Irvine. Celia Pearce is associate professor of digital media at Georgia Institute of Technology. T. L. Taylor is associate professor of comparative media studies at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Coding Freedom
The Ethics and Aesthetics of Hacking
E. Gabriella Coleman

“Coleman knows, understands, and lives free culture. No one is more credible or more fascinating when describing the lives of the women and men whose mission is an open, free information age.”
—Cory Doctorow, author of Little Brother and coauthor of The Rapture of the Nerds

Exploring the rise and political significance of the free and open source software (F/OSS) movement in the United States and Europe, Coding Freedom details the ethics behind hackers’ devotion to F/OSS, the social codes that guide its production, and the political struggles through which hackers question the scope and direction of copyright and patent law. In telling the story of the F/OSS movement, the book unfolds a broader narrative involving computing, the politics of access, and intellectual property.

Gabriella Coleman tracks the ways in which hackers collaborate and examines passionate manifestos, hacker humor, free software project governance, and festive hacker conferences. Coleman demonstrates how hacking, so often marginalized or misunderstood, sheds light on the continuing relevance of liberalism in online collaboration.

E. Gabriella Coleman is the Wolfe Chair in Scientific and Technological Literacy in the Department of Art History and Communication Studies at McGill University.

Addiction by Design
Machine Gambling in Las Vegas
Natasha Dow Schüll

“A stunning portrayal of technology and the inner life. Searing, sobering, compelling: this is important, first-rate, accessible scholarship that should galvanize public conversation.”
—Sherry Turkle, author of Alone Together: Why We Expect More from Technology and Less from Each Other

Addiction by Design takes readers into the intriguing world of machine gambling, an increasingly popular and absorbing form of play that blurs the line between human and machine, compulsion and control, risk and reward.

Drawing on fifteen years of field research in Las Vegas, anthropologist Natasha Dow Schüll shows how the mechanical rhythm of electronic gambling pulls players into a trancelike state they call the “machine zone,” in which daily worries, social demands, and even bodily awareness fade away. Once in the zone, gambling addicts play not to win but simply to keep playing, for as long as possible—even at the cost of physical and economic exhaustion.

Addiction by Design is a compelling inquiry into the intensifying traffic between people and machines of chance, offering clues to some of the broader anxieties and predicaments of contemporary life.

Natasha Dow Schüll is associate professor in the Program in Science, Technology, and Society at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

When People Come First
Critical Studies in Global Health
Edited by João Biehl & Adriana Petryna

“[A] truly pioneering volume that will change the kind of work that is done in the anthropology of global health in the future.”
—Richard G. Parker, Columbia University

When People Come First critically assesses the expanding field of global health. It brings together an international and interdisciplinary group of scholars to address the medical, social, political, and economic dimensions of the global health enterprise through vivid case studies and bold conceptual work. The book demonstrates the crucial role of ethnography as an empirical lantern in global health, arguing for a more comprehensive people-centered approach.

The New Brain Sciences and the Management of the Mind
Nikolas Rose & Joelle M. Abi-Rached

“Neuro makes a significant and original contribution to our understanding of the impact of the brain sciences on social and cultural processes. The scholarship throughout is brilliant. This book gives us extremely perceptive, detailed, and illuminating analyses of what is actually being claimed in the various branches of the neurosciences.”

—Emily Martin, author of Bipolar Expeditions: Mania and Depression in American Culture

Neuro describes the key developments—theoretical, technological, economic, and biopolitical—that have enabled the neurosciences to gain such traction outside the laboratory. It explores the ways neurobiological conceptions of personhood are influencing everything from child rearing to criminal justice, and are transforming the ways we “know ourselves” as human beings.

The New Arab Man
Emergent Masculinities, Technologies, and Islam in the Middle East
Marcia C. Inhorn

“At a time of great global tension in relation to the associations between Islam, masculinity, and terrorism, this is an incredibly timely book that will act to combat gross stereotypes and deeply rooted stigmas. There is no doubt in my mind that it will become a classic work of ethnographic research.”

—Richard G. Parker, Columbia University

Middle Eastern Muslim men have been widely vilified as terrorists, religious zealots, and brutal oppressors of women. The New Arab Man challenges these stereotypes with the stories of ordinary Middle Eastern men as they struggle to overcome infertility and childlessness through assisted reproduction.

Drawing on two decades of ethnographic research across the Middle East with hundreds of men from a variety of social and religious backgrounds, Marcia Inhorn shows how the new Arab man is self-consciously rethinking the patriarchal masculinity of his forefathers and unseating received wisdoms. Trenchant and emotionally gripping, The New Arab Man traces the emergence of new masculinities in the Middle East in the era of biotechnology.

Making War at Fort Hood
Life and Uncertainty in a Military Community
Kenneth T. MacLeish

“Making War at Fort Hood tackles profound questions of trauma and bodily experience, debt, love, accountability, separation and return, in a community constituted by the routine presence of war. . . . [B]eautifully written, poignant and compelling, illuminating and sensitive. This is an extraordinarily timely and important work.”
—Mary Steedly, Harvard University

Making War at Fort Hood offers an illuminating look at war through the daily lives of the people whose job it is to produce it. Kenneth MacLeish conducted a year of intensive fieldwork among soldiers and their families at and around the U.S. Army’s Fort Hood in central Texas. He shows how war’s reach extends far beyond the battlefield into military communities where violence is as routine, boring, and normal as it is shocking and traumatic.

Making War at Fort Hood is the first ethnography to examine the everyday lives of the soldiers, families, and communities who personally bear the burden of America’s most recent wars.

Kenneth T. MacLeish is assistant professor of medicine, health, and society at Vanderbilt University.

Pogrom in Gujarat

Hindu Nationalism and Anti-Muslim Violence in India

Parvis Ghassem-Fachandi

“This book is an intimate and disturbing exploration of the cultural formations around nationalism, vegetarianism, and religious imaginings that have arisen in modern-day Gujarat. Ghassem-Fachandi deploys his deep familiarity with Gujarati culture in what arguably is the most incisive and profound account of communal violence in India to date. His is a new, very distinctive voice in the anthropology of violence.”

—Thomas Blom Hansen, author of Wages of Violence: Naming and Identity in Postcolonial Bombay

In Pogrom in Gujarat, Parvis Ghassem-Fachandi provides a riveting ethnographic account of collective violence in which the doctrine of ahimsa—or nonviolence—and the closely associated practices of vegetarianism became implicated by legitimating what they formally disavow.

Ghassem-Fachandi looks at how newspapers, movies, and other media helped to fuel the pogrom. Drawing on his intimate knowledge of Gujarat’s culture and politics and the close ties he shared with some of the pogrom’s sympathizers, Ghassem-Fachandi offers a strikingly original interpretation of the different ways in which Hindu proponents of ahimsa became complicit in the very violence they claimed to renounce.

Parvis Ghassem-Fachandi is assistant professor of anthropology at Rutgers University.

Melancholia of Freedom

Social Life in an Indian Township in South Africa

Thomas Blom Hansen

“With profound insight, Hansen explores the struggles of South African Indians to take possession of their new political and cultural liberty since the end of apartheid. Showing how they are haunted by a past they cannot openly mourn and bereft of the ambiguous certainties once ensured by a racist state, this compelling and highly original book calls on us to rethink the complex challenges that attend the meaning of freedom everywhere.”

—Jean Comaroff, University of Chicago

In this book, Thomas Blom Hansen offers an in-depth analysis of the uncertainties, dreams, and anxieties that have accompanied postapartheid freedoms in Chatsworth, a formerly Indian township in Durban. Exploring five decades of township life, Hansen tells the stories of ordinary Indians whose lives were racialized and framed by the township, and how these residents domesticated and inhabited this urban space and its institutions, during apartheid and after.

Hansen demonstrates the complex and ambivalent nature of ordinary township life. While the ideology of apartheid was widely rejected, its practical institutions, from urban planning to houses, schools, and religious spaces, were embraced in order to remake the community.

Thomas Blom Hansen is professor of anthropology and the Reliance-Dhirubhai Ambani Professor of South Asian Studies at Stanford University, where he also directs the Center for South Asia.

The Black Hole of Empire
History of a Global Practice of Power
Partha Chatterjee

“Moving skillfully between gripping narrative and thoughtful interpretation, The Black Hole of Empire is a deeply researched, brilliantly crafted, and exquisitely written work on the British empire in India. Ambitious and complex, it richly resonates with contemporary political and ethical concerns. A masterly work by one of the finest intellectuals of our times.”
—Sugata Bose, Harvard University

When Siraj, the ruler of Bengal, overran the British settlement of Calcutta in 1756, he allegedly jailed 146 European prisoners overnight in a cramped prison. Of the group, 123 died of suffocation. While this episode was never independently confirmed, the story of “the black hole of Calcutta” was widely circulated and seen by the British public as an atrocity committed by savage colonial subjects. The Black Hole of Empire follows the ever-changing representations of this historical event and founding myth of the British Empire in India, from the eighteenth century to the present. Partha Chatterjee explores how a supposed tragedy paved the ideological foundations for the “civilizing” force of British imperial rule and territorial control in India.

Partha Chatterjee is professor of anthropology and of Middle Eastern, South Asian, and African Studies at Columbia University; and honorary professor at the Centre for Studies in Social Sciences, Calcutta.

Life among the Anthros and Other Essays
Clifford Geertz
Edited by Fred Inglis

“[P]art of the power of this volume is its time capsule quality. It is precisely because we know what comes thereafter that adds drama to witnessing Geertz measure new ideas in real time…. You can justify reading this book on the grounds of learning from the intoxicating analysis, all the while covertly enjoying the razor-wire writing.”
—Timothy Larsen, Books & Culture

“To read this collection is to be reminded how much we have learned from Clifford Geertz, this trailblazer in cultural anthropology and interpretive social science.”
—Charles Taylor, author of A Secular Age

Clifford Geertz (1926–2006) was perhaps the most influential anthropologist of our time, but his influence extended far beyond his field to encompass all facets of contemporary life. Nowhere were his gifts for directness, humor, and steady revelation more evident than in the New York Review of Books, where for nearly four decades he shared his acute vision of the world in all its peculiarity. This book brings together the finest of Geertz’s essays along with a selection of later pieces written at the height of his powers, some never before published.

Clifford Geertz was professor emeritus in the School of Social Science at the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton.

Syrian Episodes
Sons, Fathers, and an Anthropologist in Aleppo
John Borneman

“Vivid detail fills Syrian Episodes . . . . The author fulfills his early promise of an ethnography that is as much about others’ questions as his own.”
—Nina C. Ayoub, Chronicle of Higher Education

Recounting his experience of living and lecturing in Aleppo, Syria’s second-largest city, John Borneman offers deft, first-person stories of the longings and discontents expressed by Syrian sons and fathers, as well as a prescient analysis of the precarious power held by the regime, its relation to domestic authority, and the conditions of its demise. We read of romantic seductions, rumors of spying, the play of light in rooms, the bargaining of tourists in bazaars, and an attack of wild dogs. With unflinching honesty and frequent humor, Borneman describes his encounters with students and teachers, customers and merchants, and women and families, many who are as intrigued by the anthropologist as he is by them. Refusing to patronize those he meets or to minimize his differences with them, Borneman provokes his interlocutors, teasing out unexpected confidences, comic responses, and mutual misunderstandings.

Combining literary imagination and anthropological insight, Syrian Episodes offers an unforgettable portrait of contemporary culture in Aleppo.

John Borneman is professor of anthropology at Princeton University.

Perfect Order
Recognizing Complexity in Bali
J. Stephen Lansing

 “[A] winning combination of hard science and interpretative ethnography.”
—Roy Ellen, American Anthropologist

“A master storyteller, Stephen Lansing is unique in his ability to explain order in human societies within the framework of complex systems theory.”
—Simon A. Levin, Princeton University

Along rivers in Bali, small groups of farmers have met regularly in water temples to manage irrigation systems for thousands of years. Although each group focuses on its own problems, a global solution emerges. Could these networks have emerged from a self-organizing process? Perfect Order—a groundbreaking work at the nexus of conservation, complexity theory, and anthropology—describes a series of fieldwork projects triggered by this question, ranging from the archaeology of the water temples to their ecological functions and their place in Balinese cosmology. Stephen Lansing shows that the temple networks are fragile, vulnerable to the competition among male descent groups, but when they act in unison, small miracles occur.

J. Stephen Lansing is professor of anthropology at the University of Arizona, external professor at the Santa Fe Institute, and senior research fellow at the Stockholm Resilience Centre.

Muslim Nationalism and the New Turks
Jenny White

"Innovative and original, this is a very important and insightful analysis of contemporary Turkish discourses on what it means to be Turkish and a member of the Turkish nation."

—Marc Baer, author of The Dönme: Jewish Converts, Muslim Revolutionaries, and Secular Turks

Turkey has leapt to international prominence as an economic and political powerhouse under its elected Muslim government, and is looked on by many as a model for other Muslim countries in the wake of the Arab Spring. This book reveals how Turkish national identity and the meanings of Islam and secularism have undergone radical changes in today’s Turkey, and asks whether the Turkish model should be viewed as a success story or cautionary tale.

Jenny White shows how Turkey’s Muslim elites have mounted a powerful political and economic challenge to the country’s secularists, developing an alternative definition of the nation based on a nostalgic revival of Turkey’s Ottoman past. This provocative book traces how Muslim nationalists blur the line between the secular and the Islamic, supporting globalization and political liberalism, yet remaining mired in authoritarianism, intolerance, and cultural norms hostile to minorities and women.

Jenny White is associate professor of anthropology at Boston University.

Egypt after Mubarak
Liberalism, Islam, and Democracy in the Arab World
Bruce K. Rutherford

“[Readers will] be rewarded by Rutherford’s ambitious effort to explain how significant political actors, specifically, the Muslim Brotherhood, the judiciary, and the business sector, can work in parallel, if not exactly together, to influence the country’s trajectory over time. This is a novel approach to analyzing Egyptian politics.”

—Foreign Affairs

Which way will Egypt go now that Husni Mubarak’s authoritarian regime has been swept from power? Egypt after Mubarak reveals that Egypt’s secularists and Islamists may yet navigate a middle path that results in a uniquely Islamic form of liberalism and, perhaps, democracy. Bruce Rutherford draws on in-depth interviews with Egyptian judges, lawyers, Islamic activists, politicians, and businesspeople. He utilizes major court rulings, political documents of the Muslim Brotherhood, and the writings of Egypt’s leading contemporary Islamic thinkers. Rutherford demonstrates that, in post-Mubarak Egypt, progress toward liberalism and democracy is likely to be slow.

Essential reading on a subject of global importance, this edition includes a new introduction by Rutherford that takes stock of the Arab Spring and the Muslim Brotherhood’s victories in the 2011–2012 elections.

Bruce K. Rutherford is associate professor of political science at Colgate University.

The Muslim Brotherhood
Evolution of an Islamist Movement
Carrrie Rosefsky Wickham

“Given the profound political changes taking place in Egypt today, Wickham’s in-depth, richly composed, and intimate analysis of the Muslim Brotherhood has never been so relevant or timely. This is a first-rate book on an important topic, written by a distinguished scholar, and utilizing an impressive array of sources.”
—John P. Entelis, Fordham University

Drawing on more than one hundred in-depth interviews as well as Arabic language sources not previously accessed by Western researchers, Carrie Rosefsky Wickham traces the evolution of the Muslim Brotherhood in Egypt from its founding in 1928 to the fall of Mubarak and the watershed elections of 2011–2012. Further, she compares the Brotherhood’s trajectory with those of mainstream Islamist groups in Jordan, Kuwait, and Morocco, revealing a wider pattern of change.

Carrie Rosefsky Wickham is associate professor of political science at Emory University.

Two Cheers for Anarchism
Six Easy Pieces on Autonomy, Dignity, and Meaningful Work and Play
James C. Scott

“James Scott is one of the great political thinkers of our time. No one else has the same ability to pursue a simple, surprising idea, kindly but relentlessly, until the entire world looks different. In this book, he also demonstrates a skill shared by the greatest radical thinkers: to reveal positions we’ve been taught to think of as extremism to be emanations of simple human decency and common sense.”
—David Graeber, author of Debt: The First 5,000 Years

James Scott taught us what’s wrong with seeing like a state. Now, in his most accessible and personal book to date, the acclaimed social scientist makes the case for seeing like an anarchist. Inspired by the core anarchist faith in the possibilities of voluntary cooperation without hierarchy, Two Cheers for Anarchism is an engaging, high-spirited, and often very funny defense of an anarchist way of seeing—one that provides a unique and powerful perspective on everything from everyday social and political interactions to mass protests and revolutions. Through a wide-ranging series of memorable anecdotes and examples, the book describes an anarchist sensibility that celebrates the local knowledge, common sense, and creativity of ordinary people.

James C. Scott is the Sterling Professor of Political Science, professor of anthropology, and codirector of the Agrarian Studies Program at Yale University.

Europe and the Islamic World
A History

John Tolan, Gilles Veinstein & Henry Laurens

“This penetrating and nuanced study by three French scholars should finally lay to rest simplistic and superficial notions about an age-old ‘clash of civilizations’ between the Islamic and Western worlds. For all the ways that clerics on opposite sides tried to uphold Manichaean distinctions between believers and infidels, the real story is a much more complex one of shared human values, vigorous commercial trading, invented or reinvented traditions, and mutual cultural penetration within a mosaic of political rivalries, with religious rhetoric used both to legitimize power and mobilize resistance. This important book, which sets the scene for urgent contemporary issues, should be necessary reading for anyone seriously interested in global affairs.”
