What Is Islam?
The Importance of Being Islamic
Shahab Ahmed

“This book seeks to offer nothing short of a new way of looking at Islam, and it succeeds admirably at so doing.”
—Muhammad Qasim Zaman, Princeton University

What is Islam? How do we grasp a human and historical phenomenon characterized by such variety and contradiction? What is “Islamic” about Islamic philosophy or Islamic art? Should we speak of Islam or of islams? Should we distinguish the Islamic (the religious) from the Islamicate (the cultural)? Or should we abandon “Islamic” altogether as an analytical term?

In What Is Islam?, Shahab Ahmed presents a bold new conceptualization of Islam that challenges dominant understandings grounded in the categories of “religion” and “culture” or those that privilege law and scripture. He argues that these modes of thinking obstruct us from understanding Islam, distorting it, diminishing it, and rendering it incoherent.

What Is Islam? formulates a new conceptual language for analyzing Islam. It presents a new paradigm of how Muslims have historically understood divine revelation—one that enables us to understand how and why Muslims through history have embraced values such as exploration, ambiguity, aestheticization, polyvalence, and relativism, as well as practices such as figural art, music, and even wine drinking as Islamic. It also puts forward a new understanding of the historical constitution of Islamic law and its relationship to philosophical ethics and political theory.

A book that is certain to provoke debate and significantly alter our understanding of Islam, What Is Islam? reveals how Muslims have historically conceived of and lived with Islam as norms and truths that are at once contradictory yet coherent.

Arab Nationalism in the Twentieth Century
From Triumph to Despair
Adeed Dawisha

With a new chapter on the twenty-first-century Arab world

“A timely, illuminating and highly readable overview of the history of the Arab national movement, from its origins in the 19th century to the present…. [The book] not only brings events alive, but also leads to fresh assessments and a better-informed understanding of the politics of one of the world’s most volatile and violent regions.”
—Avi Shlaim, Guardian

In this elegantly narrated and richly documented book, Adeed Dawisha brings the majesty of Arab nationalism to life through a sweeping historical account of its dramatic rise and fall. Tracing the ideology’s passage from the collapse of the Ottoman Empire through its triumphant ascendance, and mortal blow, Dawisha argues that Arab nationalism blossomed only in the 1950s and 1960s under the leadership of Egypt’s Gamal ‘Abd al-Nasir. Drawing on Western sources, as well as an unprecedented wealth of Arab political memoirs and studies, Dawisha infuses his work with rare personal insight and extraordinary historical breadth.

Iraq
A Political History
With a new afterword by the author on political developments since the 2010 Iraqi elections

“We are fortunate to have scholars, such as Adeed Dawisha, who continue to grapple with Iraq’s political complexities…. A highly accessible and insightful work on one of the most important and complex countries in the Middle East.”
—Eric Davis, Middle East Journal

“A fine … study of abortive state building.”
—L. Carl Brown, Foreign Affairs

The story of a fragile and socially fractured Iraq did not begin with the American-led invasion of 2003—it is as old as Iraq itself. In this superb political history, Adeed Dawisha traces the history of the Iraqi state from its inception in 1921, following the collapse of the Ottoman Empire, to the present day. Featuring Dawisha’s insightful new afterword on recent political developments, Iraq is required reading for anyone seeking to make sense of what’s going on in Iraq today, and why it has been so difficult to create a viable government there.

The Love of Strangers
What Six Muslim Students Learned in Jane Austen’s London
Nile Green

“Nile Green is one of our finest global historians. In this wonderfully insightful and entertaining book, his remarkable narrative skills are on full display as he illuminates the cross-cultural encounters of a group of Iranian students abroad in early-nineteenth-century London.”
—Pankaj Mishra, author of From the Ruins of Empire

In July 1815, six Iranian students arrived in London under the escort of their chaperone, Captain Joseph D’Arcy. Their mission was to master the modern sciences behind the rapid rise of Europe. Over the next four years, they lived both the low life and high life of Regency London, from being down and out after their abandonment by D’Arcy to charming their way into society and landing on the gossip pages. The Love of Strangers tells the story of their search for love and learning in Jane Austen’s England.

Europe and the Islamic World
A History
John Tolan, Gilles Veinstein & Henry Laurens
With a foreword by John L. Esposito

“[A]n important contribution to an ever more urgent debate…. Challenges the very notion that humanity can be divided into separate ‘civilisations’, however bitter at times the conflict between them.”
—Jonathan Harris, History Today

Europe and the Islamic World sheds much-needed light on the shared roots of Islamic and Western cultures and on the richness of their inextricably intertwined histories, refuting once and for all the misguided notion of a “clash of civilizations” between the Muslim world and Europe. In this landmark book, three eminent historians bring to life the complex and tumultuous relations between Genoans and Tunisians, Alexandrians and the people of Constantinople, Catalans and Maghrebis—the myriad groups and individuals whose stories reflect the common cultural, intellectual, and religious heritage of Europe and Islam.

—John Voll, professor emeritus, Georgetown University

Nasser’s Gamble
How Intervention in Yemen Caused the Six-Day War and the Decline of Egyptian Power
Jesse Ferris

“[A] precise and deeply researched analysis of the conflict.”
—Richard Phelps, International Affairs

“In masterly fashion, Ferris explains the consequences of those adventures for Egypt, inter-Arab relations, the Middle East, and the broad lines of its future development.”
—David Sultan, Israel Journal of Foreign Affairs

Nasser’s Gamble presents a new understanding of Egypt’s disastrous five-year intervention in Yemen, which Egyptian president Gamal Abdel Nasser later referred to as “my Vietnam.” Jesse Ferris argues that Nasser’s attempt to export the Egyptian revolution to Yemen played a decisive role in destabilizing Egypt’s relations with the Cold War powers, tarnishing its image in the Arab world, ruining its economy, and driving its rulers to instigate the fatal series of missteps that led to war with Israel in 1967.

Against Massacre
Humanitarian Interventions in the Ottoman Empire, 1815–1914

—James Pettifer, Journal of Ecclesiastical History

“Against Massacre fills a significant lacuna in the vast and growing literature on humanitarian intervention.”
—Daniel J. Whelan, American Historical Review

Against Massacre looks at the rise of humanitarian intervention in the nineteenth century, from the fall of Napoleon to the First World War. Davide Rodogno explores the understudied cases of European interventions and noninterventions in the Ottoman Empire and brings a new view to this international practice for the contemporary era. Against Massacre investigates the varied consequences of European involvement in the Ottoman Empire and the lessons that can be learned for similar actions today.

Before and After Muhammad
The First Millennium Refocused
Garth Fowden

“Fowden presents a powerful and compelling new model for an integrated view of late antique and early medieval Christian, Jewish, and Muslim history that replaces traditional distinctions between East and West. Before and After Muhammad is an ambitious book, one that has the potential to shift fundamental paradigms.”
—Anthony Kaldellis, Ohio State University

Islam emerged amid flourishing Christian and Jewish cultures, yet students of Antiquity and the Middle Ages mostly ignore it. Despite intensive study of late Antiquity over the last fifty years, even generous definitions of this period have reached only the eighth century, whereas Islam did not mature sufficiently to compare with Christianity or rabbinic Judaism until the tenth century. Before and After Muhammad suggests a new way of thinking about the historical relationship between the scriptural monotheisms, integrating Islam into European and West Asian history.

On British Islam
Religion, Law, and Everyday Practice in Shari’a Councils
John R. Bowen

On British Islam examines the history and everyday workings of Islamic institutions in Britain, with a focus on shari’a councils. These councils concern themselves with religious matters, especially divorce. They have a higher profile in Britain than in other Western nations. Why? Taking a historical and ethnographic look at British Islam, John Bowen examines how Muslims created distinctive religious institutions in Britain and how shari’a councils interpret and apply Islamic law in a secular British context.

How Armies Respond to Revolutions and Why
Zoltan Barany

“This book will find a solid readership in war colleges, intelligence and policy analysis circles, and courses in intelligence analysis.”
—David J. Betz, King’s College London

We know that a revolution’s success largely depends on the army’s response to it. But can we predict the military’s reaction to an uprising? How Armies Respond to Revolutions and Why argues that it is possible to make a highly educated guess—and in some cases even a confident prediction—about the generals’ response to a domestic revolt if we know enough about the army, the state it is supposed to serve, the society in which it exists, and the external environment that affects its actions. Through concise case studies of modern uprisings in Iran, China, Eastern Europe, Burma, and the Arab world, Zoltan Barany looks at the reasons for and the logic behind the variety of choices soldiers ultimately make in various circumstances.

—Foreign Affairs
The Terrorist’s Dilemma is the first book to systematically examine the great variation in how terrorist groups are structured. Jacob Shapiro provocatively discusses the core managerial challenges that terrorists face and illustrates how their political goals push them to organize in particular ways.

The Star and the Stripes
A History of the Foreign Policies of American Jews
Michael N. Barnett
 “[A] highly readable and provocative account…. [C]hallenges many of the myths perpetrated about U.S.-Israel relations.”
—Stephen Hopgood, SOAS, University of London
How do American Jews envision their role in the world? Are they tribal—a people whose obligations extend solely to their own? Or are they prophetic—a light unto nations, working to repair the world? The Star and the Stripes is an original, provocative interpretation of the effects of these worldviews on the foreign policy beliefs of American Jews since the nineteenth century.

Ancient Religions, Modern Politics
The Islamic Case in Comparative Perspective
Michael Cook

“[I]mpregnable scholarship . . . towering work.”
—Jonathan Benthall, Times Literary Supplement

Why does Islam play a larger role in contemporary politics than other religions? Is there something about the Islamic heritage that makes Muslims more likely than adherents of other faiths to invoke it in their political life? If so, what is it? Ancient Religions, Modern Politics seeks to answer these questions by examining the roles of Islam, Hinduism, and Christianity in modern political life, placing special emphasis on the relevance—or irrelevance—of their heritages to today’s social and political concerns.
