Unequal Democracy

The Political Economy of the New Gilded Age

Larry M. Bartels

“No political scientist is more widely or rightly respected than Larry Bartels, and Unequal Democracy is a brilliant book that only he could have written. The book proves beyond a reasonable doubt that the main fault for sizable socioeconomic inequalities in America lies not in our economy but in our increasingly polarized and partisan politics. With intellectual force, Unequal Democracy pulls back the sheets on Washington’s pamper-the-rich policy process and offers ideas about how we can do better by average citizens and the poor. It is Bartels at his very best.”

—John J. Dilulio, Jr., University of Pennsylvania

Unequal Democracy provides a deep and searching analysis of the political causes and consequences of America’s growing income gap, and a sobering assessment of the capacity of the American political system to live up to its democratic ideals.

Larry M. Bartels is the Donald E. Stokes Professor of Public and International Affairs and director of the Center for the Study of Democratic Politics at Princeton University.

Souled Out

Reclaiming Faith and Politics after the Religious Right

E. J. Dionne Jr.

“Souled Out, by the respected political journalist and progressive Catholic E. J. Dionne Jr., is a deeply personal and searchingly intelligent reflection on the noble history, recent travails, and likely prospects of American liberalism.”

—R. Scott Appleby, New York Times Book Review

The religious and political winds are changing. Tens of millions of religious Americans are reclaiming faith from those who would abuse it for narrow, partisan, and ideological purposes. And more and more secular Americans are discovering common ground with believers on the great issues of social justice, peace, and the environment. In Souled Out, award-winning journalist and commentator E. J. Dionne explains why the era of the Religious Right—and the crude exploitation of faith for political advantage—is over.

E. J. Dionne Jr. is a syndicated columnist for the Washington Post, a regular political analyst on National Public Radio, a senior fellow at the Brookings Institution, and a professor at Georgetown University.

Red State, Blue State, Rich State, Poor State

Why Americans Vote the Way They Do

Andrew Gelman

"This impressive social science analysis stands much political punditry on its head. So far as voting goes, the question is less why poor Americans are victims of false consciousness than why affluent Americans in wealthy states are traitors to their class."

—Morris P. Fiorina, author of Culture War?: The Myth of a Polarized America

Red State, Blue State, Rich State, Poor State is a must-read for anyone seeking to make sense of today's fractured American political landscape.

Political Hypocrisy

The Mask of Power, from Hobbes to Orwell and Beyond

David Runciman

"David Runciman is a master navigator through the psychology of democracy."

—Simon Jenkins, author and journalist

Political Hypocrisy is a timely, and timeless, book on the problems of sincerity and truth in politics, and how we can deal with them without slipping into hypocrisy ourselves. Runciman tackles the problems through lessons drawn from some of the great truth-tellers in modern political thought—Hobbes, Mandeville, Jefferson, Bentham, Sidgwick, and Orwell—and applies his ideas to different kinds of hypocritical politicians from Oliver Cromwell to Hillary Clinton.

Why We Vote

How Schools and Communities
Shape Our Civic Life

David E. Campbell

"Campbell ... argues that voter turnout is affected not only by people's desire to protect their own interests—the view traditionally taken by political scientists—but by their feelings of civic obligation as well."

—Education Week

David E. Campbell is associate professor of political science at the University of Notre Dame.

The Cultural Contradictions of Democracy

Political Thought since September 11
John Brenkman

"Brenkman is that rare academic who can write well about both contemporary political practice and theory. His description of how the Bush administration was seized by power is insightful, and his critique of contemporary theory star Giorgio Agamben is concise and compelling."
 —Michael Roth, San Francisco Chronicle

Charter Schools

Hope or Hype?

Jack Buckley & Mark Schneider

"It is difficult to find a book or study of charter schools these days that does not take sides in the raging argument over whether charter schools are the salvation or the scourge of our nation's schools. But Buckley and Schneider have pulled it off. Their book looks just at D.C. charters but is a useful indicator of what is going on with charters nationwide."

The Right Talk

How Conservatives Transformed the Great Society into the Economic Society
Mark A. Smith

"The Right Talk argues that during the last 30 years ... the language and logic of the market have invaded almost every corner of society—to the right's great advantage.... Smith's further point—important by itself—is that while Republicans shifted their rhetoric and arguments toward the logic of the market, Democrats made a different shift, to their own political disadvantage."

Spying Blind

The CIA, the FBI, and the Origins of 9/11

Amy B. Zegart

"Ever since the end of the cold war, the Central Intelligence Agency, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the National Security Agency, and more than a dozen other intelligence organizations that answer to the president had been struggling to adapt their sources and methods to the new menace. As Amy B. Zegart argues in Spying Blind, they just weren't up to the job.... Zegart, blaming institutional inertia more than individuals, counts more than 20 specific instances where the CIA or the FBI missed chances to stop the 9/11 attacks."

Hypocrisy Trap

The World Bank and the Poverty of Reform

Catherine Weaver

"An excellent book: theoretically sophisticated, empirically rich, and refreshingly accessible."

—Martha Finnemore, George Washington University

In Hypocrisy Trap, Catherine Weaver explores how the characteristics of change in a complex international organization make hypocrisy difficult to resolve, especially after its exposure becomes a critical threat to the organization's legitimacy and survival. The first book to unravel the puzzle of organized hypocrisy in relation to reform at the World Bank, Hypocrisy Trap ultimately enriches our understanding of culture, behavior, and change in international organizations.

of Nationalism

Philip G. Roeder

"This is an original, rigorous, and indeed fascinating book. Using a wide range of data and methods, it argues that the institutional design of the units of political authority in the international system explains the origins of nation-states over nearly two hundred years."

Blind Oracles

Intellectuals and War from
Kennan to Kissinger

Bruce Kuklick

"[Blind Oracles] brilliantly combines in concise yet penetrating fashion analysis and reflection on a range of intellectuals. . . . [I]t provides a fascinating study of the role of ideas and intellectuals, the methodological approaches and interpretive frameworks associated with realism, liberalism and so forth that are not only seen as abstract formulae but provide a demonstration of how these ideas are injected into policy and used by the policy-makers on the central issues of war from the origins of the Cold War, through Cuba and on to Vietnam."

Strong Borders, Secure Nation

Cooperation and Conflict in China's Territorial Disputes

M. Taylor Fravel

"Fravel has given us a compelling and comprehensive account of why China has generally compromised in its territorial disputes with its neighbors rather than resort to force. In the process, he has made significant advances in both international relations theory and Chinese foreign policy."

—Robert J. Art, Brandeis University

As China emerges as an international economic and military power, the world waits to see how the nation will assert itself globally. Yet, as M. Taylor Fravel shows in Strong Borders, Secure Nation, concerns that China might be prone to violent conflict over territory are overstated.

M. Taylor Fravel is assistant professor of political science and member of the Security Studies Program at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Sino-Soviet Split

Cold War in the Communist World

Lorenz M. Lüthi

"Buttressed by massive documentation from a dazzling array of international archival sources, Lorenz Lüthi examines all the issues involved in the Sino-Soviet conflict from 1956 to 1966, and he singles out ideology as the prime motive that drove these two communist giants into catastrophic division. The episodes covered in this major work unfold like a kaleidoscope, refining or correcting traditional interpretations of events during this important period."

The Invisible Safety Net

Protecting the Nation's Poor Children and Families

Janet M. Currie

"This book is a must for all who are interested in improving the lives of children growing up in adversity. Its depth of scholarship documents how the 'invisible safety net' of programs in medical care, nutrition, housing, and early child care and preschool education have improved the lives of children and families even as welfare programs were being reduced. The author is analytic and incisive; the scholarship is impressive. This is a very creative approach to dealing with one of our society's basic problems."

With a new preface by Anna Jacobson Schwartz and a new introduction by Peter L. Bernstein

The Great Contraction, 1929–1933

Milton Friedman & Anna Jacobson Schwartz

Published as a stand-alone paperback in 1965, The Great Contraction, 1929–1933 argued that the Federal Reserve could have stemmed the severity of the Depression, but failed to exercise its role of managing the monetary system and ameliorating banking panics. The book served as a clarion call to the monetarist school of thought by emphasizing the importance of the money supply in the functioning of the economy—a concept that has come to inform the actions of central banks worldwide.

Milton Friedman (1912–2006) was awarded the Nobel Prize in Economics in 1976. Anna Jacobson Schwartz is a research associate at the National Bureau of Economic Research.

and Politics

Philip Pettit

"This book is the best short introduction to Hobbes's philosophy now available, but it's more than that. It is a meditation on the ways in which language makes politics possible, and on the reasons why language makes politics so difficult."

—David Runciman, author of The Politics of Good Intentions

Tamsin Shaw

"A very fine piece of research and argument. This book reads Nietzsche against the grain, since it challenges both a fair bit of what Nietzsche explicitly says about his own beliefs as well as the interpretations that these pronouncements have inspired. From Communists to Foreign Capitalists

The Social Foundations of Foreign Direct Investment in Postsocialist Europe

Nina Bandelj

"Pundits tell us that globalization has now made the world flat, and rendered the state obsolete.

Nina Bandelj shows that both of these truisms are false, explaining how social networks, institutions, politics, and culture deeply affect the flow of foreign direct investment into eleven postsocialist countries. Her thoughtful analysis will be of interest to anyone who wants to understand globalization, economic development, and Central and Eastern Europe since 1989."

The Failed Welfare Revolution

America's Struggle over Guaranteed Income Policy

Brian Steensland

"In this important work, Brian Steensland authoritatively reconstructs the history of guaranteed income proposals and highlights Richard Nixon's ironic role in the evolution of American social policy. This story, of possibilities foreclosed and opportunities missed, adds significantly to our knowledge of the American welfare state. An impressive achievement."
