A Very Brief History of Eternity
Carlos Eire

"Strikingly erudite and profound yet accessible, this book will appeal to anyone who takes pleasure in being enlightened and entertained at the same time."
—Peter Iver Kaufman, University of Richmond

In A Very Brief History of Eternity, Carlos Eire has written a brilliant short history of eternity in Western culture. Tracing the idea from ancient times to the present, Eire examines the rise and fall of five different conceptions of eternity, exploring how they developed and how they have helped shape individual and collective self-understanding.

Carlos Eire is the Riggs Professor of History and Religious Studies at Yale University.

Pen of Iron
American Prose and the King James Bible
Robert Alter

"In this subtle and impressive work, Robert Alter shows us in great, attentive detail what style is, demonstrating the work of language on every page and revealing the extraordinary things that American writers have done with the language of the King James Bible."
—Michael Wood, Princeton University

The simple yet grand language of the King James Bible has pervaded American culture from the beginning—and its powerful eloquence continues to be felt even today. In this book, acclaimed biblical translator and literary critic Robert Alter traces some of the fascinating ways that American novelists—from Melville, Hemingway, and Faulkner to Bellow, Marilynne Robinson, and Cormac McCarthy—have drawn on the rich stylistic resources of the canonical English Bible to fashion their own strongly resonant styles and distinctive visions of reality.

Robert Alter has taught Hebrew and comparative literature at the University of California, Berkeley, since 1967.

Saving God

Religion after Idolatry

Mark Johnston

“This book is a brilliantly conceived contribution to natural theology.”

—Jeffrey Stout, author of Democracy and Tradition and Ethics after Babel

In this book, Mark Johnston argues that God needs to be saved not only from the distortions of the “undergraduate atheists” (Richard Dawkins, Christopher Hitchens, and Sam Harris) but, more importantly, from the idolatrous tendencies of religion itself. Each monotheistic religion has its characteristic ways of domesticating True Divinity, of taming God’s demands so that they do not radically threaten our self-love and false righteousness. Turning the monotheistic critique of idolatry on the monotheisms themselves, Johnston shows that much in these traditions must be condemned as false and spiritually debilitating.

Mark Johnston is the Walter Cerf Professor of Philosophy at Princeton University.

A Short History of the Jews

Michael Brenner

Translated by Jeremiah Riemer

“Brenner is a proven author with a broad competence in Jewish history, which makes him one of the few Jewish historians able to handle a volume of such large scope. His book has a novel approach that sets it apart from other one-volume histories. It is intended as a first book in Jewish history for readers with little knowledge of the subject. The style is extraordinarily readable.”

—Michael A. Meyer, author of Judaism within Modernity

Michael Brenner is professor of Jewish history and culture at the University of Munich.

Taming the Gods
Religion and Democracy on Three Continents
Ian Buruma

“Ian Buruma broaches the biggest themes in contemporary world politics in this book: what are the relations, actual and possible, between religion and democracy in a globalized world? In setting out his thoughts, Buruma marshals pungent quotation after pungent quotation from Spinoza, Tocqueville, and Voltaire—not to mention Jefferson, Locke, and Hume; classic Chinese and Japanese texts; and a wide range of modern commentators, politicians, activists, and agitators.”

—Andrew Barshay, University of California, Berkeley

Faith in the Fight
Religion and the American Soldier in the Great War
Jonathan H. Ebel

“Employing a wide variety of sources, Jonathan Ebel reconstructs the religious meaning of World War I for American soldiers and civilians, and his findings are highly revisionary. The conventional wisdom has been that the Civil War was the last ‘romantic’ war and that cynicism and disillusionment have ruled ever since. Yet when Ebel actually looks at the evidence, a very different picture emerges—one of deep-seated faith and an idealistic belief in America as a Christian nation.”

Islamism and Democracy in India
The Transformation of Jamaat-e-Islami
Irfan Ahmad

“This is an outstanding historical and ethnographic account of one of the most influential Islamist movements in South Asia. The book’s thesis that even a radically antisecular Islamist movement can be transformed into supporting secular democracy is an extremely important contribution to today’s global discussions.”
—Peter van der Veer, author of Imperial Encounters

Early Modern Jewry
A New Cultural History
David B. Ruderman

Early Modern Jewry boldly offers a new history of the early modern Jewish experience. From Krakow and Venice to Amsterdam and Smyrna, David Ruderman examines the historical and cultural aspects unique to Jewish communities throughout Europe, and how these distinguishing factors played out amidst the rest of society. Revealing that Jewish communities in the early modern period were linked to one another in fascinating ways, he shows how Jews were communicating with each other and more aware of their economic, social, and religious connections than ever before.

David B. Ruderman is the Joseph Meyerhoff Professor of Modern Jewish History and Ella Darivoff Director of the Herbert D. Katz Center for Advanced Judaic Studies at the University of Pennsylvania.

Capitalism and the Jews
Jerry Z. Muller

The unique historical relationship between capitalism and the Jews is crucial to understanding modern European and Jewish history. But the subject has been addressed less often by mainstream historians than by anti-Semites or apologists. In this book, Jerry Muller, a leading historian of capitalism, separates myth from reality to explain why the Jewish experience with capitalism has been so important and complex—and so ambivalent.

Jerry Z. Muller is professor of history at the Catholic University of America in Washington DC.

Islam in South Asia in Practice
Edited by Barbara D. Metcalf

“Barbara Metcalf has helped transform the study of modern South Asian Islam by her insistence on close readings of texts, her attention to religious practice, institutions, and worldview, and her refusal to dismiss the concerns of South Asian actors. This edited volume, with its magisterial introduction, exemplifies these qualities while giving us access to a wide range of texts from throughout South Asia. She and her collaborators are owed great thanks.”

Medieval Christianity in Practice
Edited by Miri Rubin

“This unique book re-creates the practical and imaginative experiences of medieval parishioners, from cradle to grave. This is of compelling interest to historians, religious specialists, and students of literature, for we see here multifarious attempts to reach ordinary people through their own language. We also see the church at work all across Europe, celebrating its saints, discouraging dissidence, and providing for those who would live perfectly. Highly recommended.”

Machiavelli’s God
Maurizio Viroli
Praise for Maurizio Viroli’s Niccolò’s Smile: A Biography of Machiavelli
“A welcome antidote to the clichéd image of self-interested knavery for which [Machiavelli] has become known.... Viroli succeeds ... in offering a fascinating portrait.”
—Alexander Stille, New York Times Book Review
To many readers of The Prince, Machiavelli appears to be deeply un-Christian or even anti-Christian, a cynic who thinks rulers should use religion only to keep their subjects in check. But in Machiavelli’s God, Maurizio Viroli, one of the world’s leading authorities on Machiavelli, argues that Machiavelli, far from opposing Christianity, thought it was crucial to republican social and political renewal—but that first it needed to be renewed itself. And without understanding this, Viroli contends, it is impossible to comprehend Machiavelli’s thought.
